Conference on

The Private and Social Insurance Implications of Demographic Change

Dec 14-15, 2022

House of Finance, Goethe University Frankfurt

The public finance, macroeconomic and social and private insurance implications of the demographic change process are high on the agenda of economic policy makers and scientists. In this conference organized by ICIR at Goethe University Frankfurt we aim at bringing together researchers working on the topics private and social insurance both from the perspective of social policy as well as the perspective of insurance companies.

Topics of interest include among others:

- Public and private policy design and reforms of pension, health and long-term care insurance systems
- Life-cycle consumption-savings, portfolio choice and insurance
- Social implications of demographic change and of policy reforms
- Demographic change and the interplay of private and social insurance
- Demographic change and labor market reforms
- Demographic change, low interest rates and secular stagnation
- (Old-age) poverty and insurance

We particularly encourage young researchers to submit their work. Axel Börsch-Supan, Martin Boyer, Ayse Imrohoroglu, Dirk Krueger, Raimond Maurer and Olivia Mitchell have already made a commitment to present their work at the conference.

If you are interested in presenting your work, please submit drafts or papers by July 31, 2022, to Bettina Mathis-Kupczyk, Mathis-Kupczyk@finance.uni-frankfurt.de. We cover travel and accommodation expenses for all active participants.

Organizers:

Helmut Gründl (ICIR, Goethe University Frankfurt)
